

photo by Clive Barda

Who cares if classical music dies?

Robert D. Levin

7:30pm, Monday, December 10, 2018
Science Center, Lecture Hall B

Robert D. Levin is Emeritus Dwight B. Robinson Professor of the Humanities at Harvard. His reputation both as a remarkable performer, as an inspirational teacher, and as a Mozart expert abound. This public lecture is held in connection with a conference: “Current Developments in Mathematical Physics” at Harvard.